Graphic designer educated between Italy and Switzerland. I work on editorial design, visual identities and web development, with strong attention and care in the research and development of each project, adapting to different formats and channels (print, web, social) according to needs while always maintaining visual coherence. I am passionate about artistic culture and contemporary design, which guide my practice, attentive not only to the aesthetic realisation of a project but also to what it actually communicates. I am, in fact, strongly interested in the relationship between communication and technology, and for this reason I seek to develop coherent visual systems across physical and digital contexts.
